Tiger Corridor is an extension of Tuli Tiger Resort at Kanha National Park. It is in effect their luxury wing except that the wing is like an entirely separate lodge with its own facilities.

It is billed as a luxury tented lodge but to call these tents is a bit of a misnomer. The huge rooms have fixed solid walls with a tented roof. This canopy gives the rooms a very romantic look and the tent theme is continued inside. The walls are dressed with fabric so you feel you are in a tent even though you are in a luxury en-suite room.

There are just eight of these free standing air conditioned 550 square foot luxury tents. Each tent has an open space and a large outdoor deck, one king size or twin beds with super luxurious bathrooms which have four-poster baths! All the tents have wooden floors and embroidered interior canopies, furnished in lavish style, complete with a DVD player, dining lounge and minibar.

The tents are set in well maintained private grounds and the palace has a very upmarket and exclusive feel to it. Tiger Corridor has its own small swimming pool and a fully air-conditioned private tented lounge-cum-library called "The Habitat" along with well stocked bar & dining room. It has retractable shutters and warming fires for the cooler months of the season. The chefs offer a selection of delicious Indian, Continental and Chinese cuisine.

If you want luxury accommodation for your tiger safari at Kanha then Tuli Tiger Corridor is the place to stay. It adds a touch of romance to your Indian wildlife safari.
