

Chikoko Tree Camp

Highlights	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Remote setting, ideal for those wishing to stay in the heart of the bush and explore the area on foot.• Guided walking safaris in this isolated, natural setting.• Intimate bush camp.
Situation	South Luangwa National Park, Zambia.
Activities	Guided walking safaris in the remote African bush, led by an experienced and knowledgeable guide and accompanied by an armed scout.

Chikoko Tree Camp is one of two small and exclusive bush camps in South Luangwa, which together form Chikoko Trails. These camps are only accessible on foot and offer a unique bush experience. They are ideal for clients who are keen to get away from the restrictions and inactivity of game drives. The experience of being on foot in these isolated and natural surroundings cannot be beaten. Guests are well looked after here and full support is provided with an experienced walking guide, armed National Park scout and chef as well as a general camp staff.

Chikoko Tree Camp offers accommodation for a maximum of 6 people in 3 en-suite chalets. The rooms are built 3 metres above the ground and provide a wonderful vantage point from which to observe the surrounding area. A stay at Chikoko Tree Camp combines well with a stay at its sister camp, Crocodile River Camp and at the main Tafika Camp.

The walking safaris usually last a leisurely 3-4 hours. As well as the guide and scout, the group is accompanied by a tea bearer. The terrain is mostly flat but occasionally uneven. These walking safaris are not suitable for children under 12 years of age.
