Jongomero Camp is a luxury safari camp set under shady acacia trees on the banks of the Jongomero Sand River in the remote south-western sector of Ruaha with excellent food, service and guiding. Few other vehicles are seen here, giving guests the chance to enjoy their safari without many other tourists.

Accommodation at Jongomero comprises eight large and well-appointed tents under enormous thatched roofs that also encompass a spacious private veranda. Each room has huge 8ft wide dhow wood beds with 240v atmospheric lighting. The large en-suite bathrooms have double sink units, spacious showers with hot and cold running water, water being heated by solar with back up immersion systems. Huge private viewing decks with comfy seating afront each room with river views.

The dining and living areas are both original and very comfortable offering a great location to take in the sights and sounds of the African bush that surrounds the Camp, and are set with river views under large shady trees. Nearby is a cooling filtered pool for those hot days with towels and loungers provided.

Fly camping and walking mobile safaris may be available from the end of July to November, depending on local conditions and at extra cost.
