

Isabela

Further Links

- Exploring the lava flows of this young island.
- Seeing the variety of wildlife on the largest of the islands.
- Snorkeling with penguins.

Situation

Isabela is the largest and one of the youngest of islands, with several active volcanoes. It is located in the west of the archipelago.

Activities

Exploring the wildlife of the island.

The largest island in the archipelago, it has the biggest volcanoes and largest tortoise population. The four landing sites are on the west of the island, a long way from most of the other islands in the archipelago. However, between them there is lots to see - flamingoes, ducks, waders, moorhens, penguins, brown noddy terns, marine iguanas, flightless cormorants, herons, and of course blue-footed boobies and sea lions.